TWO HUNDRED SCRAP-BOOKS
Edna C. DeBoos

Out at 5350 Inkster Road, Wayne Co., Michigan lives an elderly couple whom we think every member of the Society would enjoy visiting. They are Mr. and Mrs. Dipbove (which name is a corruption of DuBois) - one of those queer changes in spelling which we find so often occurred in families. Mrs. Dipbove is a descendant of the Clarke family from Ireland. Her father was Winfield Scott Fort (1853-1875), born in Butler County, Ohio and her mother, Lydia Priscilla Clark (1854-1931) of Clarksville, Iowa, where her grandparents, Abner and Malinda (Pitsenberger) Clark, had been early settlers and named the town. Her great-grandparents Clarke (from which the a was later dropped) were Archibald and Susan (Greaves) Clarke. Susan's father was a teacher of oriental languages and tutored the noted Adam Clarke.

But Mrs. Dipbove's chief interest is her scrapbooks. She has made over two hundred of them. To look through them is a nostalgic experience, for you will see there some of the pictures you pasted into your own childhood books and found in grandmother's card basket when you visited her. There are tiny cards such as you got at Sunday School, with lines from the Bible, pages of ladies from Godey Books and Peterson's Magazine, books of Birds, dog, cats, old time ads for Cortes & Clarke thread and those prizes drawn from boxes of cereals. There are scrap books of presidents and kings and famous people, books of poetry and poets, books of cathedrals and foreign scenes and events, books of flowers, old time valentines, beauties of their days, etc. Some of her books are of her family history with letters and descriptions by contemporaries, which add much to their interest. Even Mr. Dipbove has a scrap book of his Masonic lodge in Indiana and of himself wearing the uniform with feathered hat and sword, which last he will proudly bring out and display to you, if you are interested.

Being the owner, the creator and collector of so many lovely and interesting scrap books has brought Mrs. Dipbove much pleasure, some publicity and many friends, some of whom have given her their own books to add to her collection. In 1940 she exhibited some of her books at the hobby show at J. L. Hudson's. But she likes best to have one visit her in her home. There she will ask you to name your special interest and she will bring out her book on that subject. But this only dramatizes the extent of her collection. There will be other books laid out on the tables of her sunny, bright little sun-porch, with cover so attractive you must look into them. And so you go on for hours looking at another and another.

Mrs. Dipbove regrets now, that when she began to paste, she did not put in the date and source of many of her clippings. "Live and learn," she says philosophically.

These books have filled her life with an interest and a glamour which she loves to share with others and through which she has expanded her own horizons. She gives too as well as collects. She gave the writer some pages torn from an old Ypsilanti Bible, pages whose record might be better preserved in this magazine than in her collection. So she selects. How interesting is life that one may select from it enough items to fill two hundred scrap books!

AT THE OCTOBER MEETING, Mr. Craig H. Ritchie spoke entertainingly and authoritatively on "The History of Heraldry," to which he has given deep interest and long study. In medieval days, the fighting man carried a shield, wore a helmet and used a lance or club. As he became more and more protected with armor, he became almost indistinguishable from both his comrades and his foe in the hand-to-hand fighting of the day. Hence the need for a mark to differentiate him from others. Simple at first, these insignia came to have designs recording the origin or accomplishments of the knight, his family or his clan. While sometimes conferred by a ruler or commander, these devices were often simply assumed and itinerant artists made a business of designing them for any individual who wanted one. The crusades gave great impetus to the fashion which spread throughout Europe. A change in the mode of fighting - at a distance with gun powder - brought the decline of the coat of arms as a military device but its use as a social emblem grew. Princes of church and state acquired them. In England in 1385, the Stuart-Strokes complained that another family was using an emblem similar to theirs. A conference was called and a movement began to collect and regulate the use of heraldic devices in England. The result was the establishment of the College of Heralds in 1485 which brought order to heraldry. Thence to be heraldic, a design must be hereditary and control a certain amount of land. It has been said that heraldry is the shorthand of history. The genealogist tries to transpose this shorthand of medieval symbols into the family history it conceals.

REV. FATHER EDWARD J. DOWLING, S. J. member of the faculty of the University of Detroit, and Secretary of the Marine Historical Society, was the speaker at the November meeting. His subject was "Ships and their Place in the Settlement of the Great Lakes Region." His talk covered almost three hundred years of maritime navigation, beginning with the first sailing craft recorded in the region, which was the Griffon of LaSalle, in 1679. For one hundred and fifty years sails were the only means of propulsion and even after steam came into use, all ships were equipped with canvas for use in emergency. Fore-and-aft rigged schooners were characteristic of Great Lakes craft. Steamers were in use on Lake Ontario as early as 1816, but did not appear on Erie and Huron until later. First came the side-wheeler, followed about 1840 by steamers with submerged screw propeller. These were the ships which brought the westward moving settlers from the east to Michigan and beyond. The abundance of lumber made shipbuilding comparatively inexpensive, and furnished cargoes which made their use lucrative. The next decade saw the development of ships as pleasure craft, for excursions and holiday cutings.

"It is the indelible marks that men have made unconsciously in performing their daily tasks that give the best ground for historical research. From day to day men have made decisions and translated them into courses of action. They have drawn documents, written letters, entered their transactions in books of account for many and intensely practical purposes. These purposes have been in no way related to the hope of leaving some permanent memorial of any historic value. From these fragments, we glean the solid material for the reconstruction of events. They were uncolored by the frightening notion that there might have been historical value in them. From this ingenious testimony we can trace the steps that men have tread unwitting that each footprint contributes its piece to the mosaic of history's pattern."

Hon. Dana Porter, Ontario Historical Society News-Letter, Sept. 1947

AUTHENTICATED COPIES
By William Clarence Hudson

It is sometimes advisable for the genealogist to authenticate copies he has made of records, particularly family records or records not easily accessible to the public. Such authentication makes the copy more acceptable to other investigators and adds to their value as evidence. Work not properly identified and verified may, and often does become lost and useless when it passes out of the hands of the original researcher. Thus much careful painstaking work on the part of a faithful and thorough genealogist may have been done in vain. Furthermore, such losses are often irreparable.

The value of any copy depends fundamentally on two things: the care with which it is made and the reputation and standing of the genealogist who makes it. It is obvious that hurried notes made even by a trained genealogist do not carry the same weight as a carefully made and complete copy. A future genealogist, or one in another section of the country is also more likely to rely upon the copy if he knows the condition of the record and whether it contains all or only a portion of the original. For instance if a Bible published in 1815 contains records of births dating back to 1720 it is clear that the records were made long after the events they record, and are therefore less dependable than entries made of events at the time they occur.

A simple method of authentication is to make an affidavit as to the correctness of the copy and the conditions under which it was made. The following is suggested as an easy form that might be used for proper verification. The family is an imaginary one.

Copy of Bumpkin Family Bible

"Births Henry Bumpkin born ye 4th day of ye 3rd month 1729
 Maria Bumpkin born ye 21st day of ye 7th month 1734
 Daniel Bumpkin June 12, 1759 Hezekiah Bumpkin Oct. 9, 1764
 Amos Bumpkin Jan. 3, 1761 Esther Bumpkin Feb. 5, 1767
 Deborah Bumpkin Nov. 16, 1762 Aaron Bumpkin Feb. 20, 1770
 Henry Stebbins Bumpkin, June 16, 1803

Marriages: Henry Bumpkin and Maria Stebbins May 18, 1758
 Amos Bumpkin and Jane Hartshorne June 15, 1883
 Deborah Bumpkin and Moses Banthorpe Sept. 20, 1883
 Aaron Bumpkin and Hilda Silverfield Feb. 3, 1801
 Henry Stebbins Bumpkin and Hannah Primface Mar. 18, 1825.

Deaths: Daniel Bumpkin, August 15, 1759
 Henry Bumpkin, Feb. 19, 1794
 Esther Bumpkin, Feb. 19, 1794
 Hezekiah Bumpkin, May 12, 1804
 Maria Bumpkin, Nov. 21, 1804"

The Bible was in possession of John Henry Bumpkin at Collinsville, Michigan, June 7, 1943 at time this copy was made, and was in good condition. It was published in Philadelphia by the Franklin Printing Company in 1758. The first two entries of births were made in a different hand-writing. Present owner of Bible states it has always been in possession of the family.

(Signed) Gerald K. Turnover.

Sworn to before me by Gerald K. Turnover as a full, true and exact copy of the record and a true statement of the facts.

(Signed) Isaac Highbrow, Notary Public

Note: If the record is not complete, as for instance, in the case of cemetery inscriptions where only the birth and death dates are given, the verification would have to be changed to state that it was a true copy of the dates of births and death shown on the gravestones. If, instead of being a fully copy it is an extract from the full copy, it should be so stated. If the document sworn to consists of more than one page, the certification should so state and identify the pages as, for instance, "the above document, consisting of three pages numbered 1 to 3 inclusive, and securely fastened together, was signed and sworn to before me etc."

SUGGESTIONS

In the past several months Mr. Maurice Fox, President of the Detroit Society for Genealogical Research, has written to and received replies from a number of the well-known editors, genealogists and historians of the day. Their suggestions and comments on our young and growing society are of interest and inspiration to all.

"As to the work of your Society I would suggest that it would be most valuable if you would concentrate on the emigration from New England into the Middle West which is a special field in itself. In this connection I should advise that you do not localize it to Michigan but take the entire tide which left New England after the Revolution and went Westward, first to Central New York State and Ohio and then on to Michigan and Wisconsin. Articles upon such families and records bearing on this would be most useful. Here in the New England Registries of deeds there are a good many persons who had gone West (I include the emigration into New York State), selling their property back here, and these often give evidence from whence and from which families these people sprang. I recall some deeds of this sort at Block Island and Bristol Co. Mass., and this would be an interesting field. Dartmouth, Westport (Mass.) and Tiverton and Little Compton, Rhode Island as well as the Narragansett towns sent out many such pioneers." G. ANDREWS MORIARTY of the New England Historical and Genealogical Register.

"If you could print (gradually over the years) the 1850 Census of Michigan, it would be a splendid undertaking. Brief abstracts of wills and estates in the earlier settled countries are also useful. You are already doing a fine work in printing gravestone inscriptions and if I recall, some early vital records, as well as Bible or family records. Most important of all, the magazine should be indexed." DONALD L. JACOBUS, Editor of The American Genealogist.

MOSHER GENEALOGY

This installment concludes St. Clair County Marriages for the time being. Publication will be resumed later, finishing all the marriages recorded in Book I.

IN MEMORY

MAJORIA B. NORRIS was born to parents Silas Ensign Norris and Florence H. Chillson, March 8, 1898 on the Norris farm, located on the northeast corner of Five Mile and Beech Road, Redford Twp., Wayne Co., Mich. Her grandparents were pioneer settlers in the county, George Norris coming to Redford Township in 1828 and Benjamin Chillson to Livonia Township in 1832. The Norris family moved to Detroit in 1906 where they had residence on Seventeenth Street. This move was of real consequence for Marjoria, since on September 8, 1920, she married the boy next door, Clarence L. Beavis. She died October 12, 1948 leaving her husband and two sons; Leonard, a student at Michigan University and Robert a junior at Mackenzie High.

"We need not praise her, for her works praise her," said her pastor at the last services. This particularly true in the historical and genealogical field. In 1937 she compiled the genealogy of Alexander Bryan, her great-great-grandfather who conducted a tavern in Saratoga Springs, N. Y. In 1939 she published the inscriptions of the pioneer Redford cemeteries. In 1943 she collected and wrote a comprehensive history of the 100 year old Grace Methodist Church. She published data on many of her own and her husband's family lines - Cross, Chillson, Norris, Tackaberry, Avery, Smith and Shapley. Many of her compilations were published in the DSGR Magazine and others were deposited in the Burton Historical Collection. She indexed many histories and at least four of the annual volumes of the DSGR Magazine. In the last month of her steadily declining strength she finished the index of a long church record given her by a New York friend.

Genealogical and historical work were her great life interests. A charter member of the Detroit Society for Genealogical Research, she became corresponding secretary in 1937 and in 1939 joined the Publication Committee of the magazine. She served continuously on this committee until September 1944 when she became Asst-Editor in charge of producing the magazine. In this post she continued until the fall of 1948. It was in recognition of this untiring devotion that the Detroit Society voted Mrs. Beavis an honorary life membership.

Other organizations to which Mrs. Beavis lent her interest and support were: John Sackett Chapter D. A. R., Eastern Star, Detroit Historical Society and the New England Historic and Genealogical Society. She also collected rare books and had a well-chosen and valuable historical library.

OSCAR D. KNABENSHUE died Aug. 30, 1948, in Detroit at the remarkable age of 94 yrs. 7 mo. and 7 days. He was born in Fairfield, O. where his father, Joseph Nathaniel Knabenshue was an early settler and operated the Rock Gris t Mill near Lancaster, which mill, built in 1824 is still standing. Mr. Knabenshue was a railroad telegrapher and became head of the Telegraph Dep't. of the Hocking Valley R.R., where he remained until 1897. From that time until 1923 he was in the auditing department of the U. S. Steel Corp. His wife, Katherine (Sweyer) died in Detroit Sept. 30, 1928. Three daughters survive him: Miss Gertrude Knabenshue, Mrs. Smith F. Weiser of Detroit and Mrs. Louise K. Seltzer of Lakewood, Ohio.

He was an honorary member of the Strathmoor Garden Club, member of the Detroit Historical Society (for many years he assisted Mr. Arthur Hampton in the Historical Museum), member of the Presbyterian Church and an honorary life member of DSGR.

Mr. Knabenshue had an unusual memory and up to the day before his death was alert to the current world news. This world interest was characteristic of his family. His brother Samuel was general consul at Tientsin, China and then editor of the Toledo Blade. A nephew Paul was a career man in the U. S. Consular Service.

Last rites were conducted by Rev. Donald Carmichael and burial was in Grand Lawn Cemetery. Members of the Detroit Society for Genealogical Research were bearers.

GENEALOGY OF CENTRAL NEW YORK by Richard Cutting. Pub. by Lewis Historical Pub. Co. 1912. Vol. II p 565 Bowen Family. This account is correct through five generations from Griffith of Boston through Silas of Woodstock, Conn. But Silas, according to "Bowen's of Woodstock" had no son Moses. Vital Records of Ashford, Conn., on file in the State Library at Hartford give these children of John and Elizabeth (Tufts)

- Bowen. 1. John b. Sept. 24, 1732
 2. Peter b. July 5, 1734
 3. Benjamin b. Jan. 3, 1735-6
 4. Joseph b. May 17, 1741
 5. Filis (?) b. May 4, 1745-6
 6. Aaron b. May 6, 1749
 7. Stoddard b. Aug. 23, 1752
 8. Moses b. Mar. 31, 1755 (1751?)
 9. John b. Oct. 5, 1755.

Vital records of Spencer, Mass. give the marriage of Moses Bowen of Sturbridge and Martha Ball. Nov. 21, 1771.

D.A.R. Cemetery Records of New York in the Educational Bldg., Albany, have these gravestone records from Hinman Hollow, Otsego Co., N. Y.

NEW BOOKS

"JUST YESTERDAY, a Collection of Pictures and a Bibliography of Reference Materials for the Enjoyment and Use of Students and Other Citizens of Macomb County" is the admirable title of an admirable work put out by Robert Beal of Mt. Clemens High School with the help of his senior class and other cooperating teachers and librarians. The reproduction of many old photographs justifies the "Enjoyment" alongside the long array of titles for "Use." This is a fine contribution to local history and one that should be widely emulated elsewhere. The price is $1.25.

"SEARCHING FOR YOUR ANCESTORS" by Gilbert H. Doane, published by the University of Minnesota Press. $3.50. Although in a new edition, this is an old friend that has started many a wishful dilly-dallier (including the writer of this paragraph) on a long and happy quest for forgotten ancestors. For the beginner it is a text-book telling how to go at such a search, where to look, and how to evaluate and put together the findings. For the more experienced searcher, it is the light-hearted account of an enthusiast whose experiences may be relished and whose references may be checked with one's own. Genealogical research is revealed as it is - darned good fun with generous cultural concomitants. While the author takes care to emphasize the fact that wills, deeds, vital statistics and tombstones are prevalent all over the United States, most of the illustrations are from the New York and New England fields. This should make the book particularly appealing to our Michigan people of similar background. There is a bibliography of the most used genealogical sources for each of the thirteen original states. Other features are lists of available censuses and the vital records of the various states. Dressed up in more readable type and with a new cover, this book merits the attention of all amateur genealogists.

QUERIES

1135: C-7: CHASE:- John B. Chase, Orford, N. H. married Sept. 1801, Sally Niles who died 2-10-1819 aged 42; m. 2nd Oct. 1822 Abigail Aldrich (daughter of Silas of Bradford, Vt.) His daughter wrote in one of her Bibles, "John B. Chase born in Newburyport, Mass. 1775; died between 1854 and 1870, can not tell." He was a teacher. He may have married a 3rd time as his daughter refers to her sister Nancy and daughter. Nancy was not a daughter by Sally Niles or Abigail Aldrich (See Bible inscriptions p. 41 this magazine). IS THIS ABOVE JOHN B. CHASE A DESCENDANT OF AQUILA? -- John, Abel, Nathaniel, James, Thomas, Aquila?

1136: T-15: CARNEY:- Data sought on Morris Carney whose youngest child was born at Eastport Maine in 1852. There were fifteen children in the family - eight of whom lived. He may have married an Odell or a Miller.

1137: T-15: WAUGH:- Correspondence sought with anyone of the surname WAUGH- particularly those of Maine ancestry or of Massachusetts lines. Am interested in the families of James and Mary Waugh and of John and Anne Waugh, both of Townsend, Mass. about 1750. Thomas and James, two sons of James and Mary, were early settlers at Starks Maine about 1778.

1138: T-15: MARSH:- Nathan and Betsey (Hale) Marsh had a daughter Betsey who married Joshua Greenleaf at Anson, Maine in 1821. Want data on this family.

1139: H-6: HILL:- Records and correspondence desired on these "Hill Men" of Michigan.

Aaron Carman Hill m. (1) Martha Higgins 1833 and m. (2) Amy Higgins 1862.

Abel Hill, b. N. Y. 1844/46, enlisted Civil War Waconsta, Mich. 1864, d. 1919 at Grand Rapids, Mich.

Abraham Hill second or third white child b. 1819 Avon or Rochester, Mich. lived Stony Creek, Mich. 1877.

Adam Hill born Ohio 1839, died 1911 Paris, Mich.

Adam Hill b. 1862, lived Becket, Sanilac Co. Mich.

Addison Hill b. 1847, enlist Civil War 1865 Leslie, Mich.

Alexander Hill b. 1834, enlisted Civil War Kalamazoo, Mich. 1862.

1140: R-23: ROBINSON:- Wanted the birth, death and marriage date of Patrick Robinson of Norton, Mass. who married Judith Cooper. Also where did William and James Robinson settle? James and William were sons of Daniel Robinson of Foxboro, Mass. who went to Vermont in 1788. Daniel Robinson married Lucretia Perce in 1756 in Bristol Co. Mass. James Robinson married Ardelia Lincoln and is said to have settled in Perishville, N. Y. But no record of William.

1141: R-23:- Would like to know date of birth, death and marriage, and name of wife of William Robinson of Shaftsbury, Vt. Was he a son of Daniel Robinson of Sharon, Vt. near Strafford Vt. located in Orange County?

1142: B-30:- Want data on John Brown, m. April, 1811, Robeson Co., N. C. Elizabeth the daughter of Alexander and Agnes (Cade) Fulmore. "Kinfolks" states, "They probably came from Marlboro District, S. C."

NOTES OF THE SOCIETY

We MISS the Austins. . . Welcome, welcome and thrice welcome to our out-in-state members at the October meeting, Mrs. Corliss, Mr. Paeker, Dr. and Mrs. Everett and Mrs. Anning. . . Mrs. Kennings, doing a short shift at Ford Hospital read every word of "Searching for Your Ancestors". She came out fortified in health and in genealogical practice too. . . Another Joel Williamson, son of Clara and Joel, appeared on September 12 to remind Grandpa Martin to begin working on that Williamson line. . . Orchids, (sosp would be more suitable), to Mr. Robinson for straightening up the back files of the magazine in the basement of the library. . . Mrs. Cleveland, one of our best indexers now keeps store in Harrisville, Michigan, under the name of "Northern Sportswear". . . To our members in Florida for the winter, Mrs. Lamb, Mr. McLaughlin and Mrs. Hobel, we send best wishes and no little envy. . . Mrs. DeBoos lectured on the Huguenots before the McCall Auxiliary on October 6. . . On October 11, F. W. Robinson spoke at the Art Institute on "The Knight in Armor as a Work of Art." Nice tie-in with our October meeting. . . We understand that Writer McFee, after soaking up a deal of inspiration at Concord, Mass. last September is again breaking into one of the national magazines. . . Oh Ye! Hear Ye! Miss Hathaway is down to the letter M in the index. . . C. R. Martin lately received four cartons (170 lbs.) containing genealogical material belonging to our late life member, H. F. Sturtevant. The material, when assorted and arranged, will go into Burton. . .

The oldest Bible (1749) in Burton is the Clemens Bible traced from Germantown, Pa. to Missouri and back again to Ohio by our Miss Crittenden. . . Mrs. Campbell McCormick has uncovered a genealogist in Holland. Anyone interested? . . Membership lists, printed last January are still available for ten cents. . . Have you seen that colossal idea with the infinitesimal result - a fifty page book microfilmed on the back of an ordinary index card? It was sent to Mr. Fox by Fremont Rider of the American Genealogical Index. Soon libraries will be nothing but catalogs and we can snoop through every book in the place without benefit of librarians. Fun, eh! . . That indefatigable Mrs. Corliss is now making a complete copy of the 1870 census of Van Buren Co. Mich. . . Some day some of us-particularly those of heterogeneous background - will go to Salt Lake City to search out our varied ancestral lines. Mr. Miller reports he obtained copies of Maryland wills there which he was unable to get in the local depository. Mr. Robinson reports the micro-filming of the records Salisbury, Conn. by the Genealogical Society of the Mormon Church this summer. The records of all New England are to be copied in this way. . . Dr. Mudd of Saginaw, one of our new members, hopes to publish by the end of the year, the history of the Mudd family started by Rev. Father L. J. Kenny at St. Louis University in 1928. All Father Kenny's papers were turned over to him. . . Mrs. W. C. Clark (Six years since she left Detroit) is working again on the Gillett family and invites participation by all descendants. . . This article, "Excursion into Genealogy--Immortality in Reverse" by Mary Childs Nerney in the Vermont Quarterly, April 1940, is worth reading. . . We can and will go on for the rest of this page, just telling about the activities of our member of long-standing, Samuel Atherton of Muskegon. He is completing (1) a history of the town of Shelby, Oceana Co. Michigan, which includes genealogical material on some 500 families of that community; (2) preparing for publication the history of the descendants of Capt. Joseph Atherton of Chesterfield, N. H.; (3) revising his already published work, "Samuel Goodrich of Chesterfield, N. H.; (4) working on the descendants of William and Mary Bedell Barlow and descendants of Joseph and Ruth Fletcher Evans of Ontario Province, Canada. The History of Shelby will sell for $4.00 and we hope the sale will pay the printer. The author's work is a labor of love.
